

Head Lice Myths!

There are a lot of myths surrounding head lice, how and why children get them and where they come from. Below are some of the most commonly believed myths, dispelled!

1. Catching head lice is not associated with poor hygiene. In fact, head lice are often described as 'equal opportunity parasites'!
2. Head lice can't jump or fly (or swim for that matter!). They are normally transferred by direct contact from head to head.
3. Head lice are not able to survive off the scalp for long, so whilst it's possible to catch them from clothing or hats, it's extremely unlikely.
4. Children with shorter hair are just as likely to catch head lice as those with long hair.
5. You can only catch head lice from humans, so don't be worried about your pets passing it on!
6. Itching is not always a sign of head lice infestation as only around 30% of people suffer from itching caused by head lice – it is thought it is an allergy to the lice that causes the itch.
